Judge Easy On Stickles

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)—Monty A. Stickles, former Notre Dame football star and now an end for the professional San Francisco Forty-Niners, broke into tears Tuesday when a judge suspended a 60-day assault sentence given him and an army friend.

Judge Forrest B. Wall of Municipal Court told Stickles and Robert P. Behn, 22, of Steger, Ill.:

"Looking at the over-all picture, I feel that in making these men serve 40 to 60 days would result in jeopardizing their future. . . . Since it is the purpose of the court to consider the rehabilitation of persons convicted, as well as the punishment, I feel that more harm would result if these men were sent to jail."

Let stand against each was a $100 fine also imposed at the June 12 trial.

Stickles, 22, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Behn were convicted for their parts in the May 28 beating of Peter M. Bauer on a lonely road. They were accused of forcing Bauer's car off the road in order to engage in a fist fight.

Work Stoppage Supports Seamen

NEW YORK (AP) — The International Longshoremen's Association has called a one-day work stoppage in New York for Wednesday in support of $5,000 striking American seamen.

The New York Shipping Association threatened to sue the ILA for breach of contract and for damages.

Shippers figure it costs them about $20 million for every day the docks are shut down.

The work stoppage by 25,000 New York dockers was called Tuesday so they can attend a mass rally at Battery Park, beginning at 11:30 a.m. It is expected to halt work on all ships in the harbor — not only American-flag vessels that are targets of the seamen's strike, but foreign-flag ships as well.

The ILA has backed the five-day seamen's strike to the extent of honoring picket lines in some areas. But the longshoremen have not otherwise taken any active role in the walkout.

Meanwhile, a festering inter-union rivalry complicated the five-day strike. It centered around the movement of defense cargo.

Among seven unions involved in the strike are the National Maritime Union, with 37,000 members, and its bitter rival, the Seafarers International Union, with 23,000.

NMU President Joseph Curran has accused a third striking union, the Marine Engineers, of siding with the SIU in a dispute over military shipments. The strikers previously had announced that government transports and defense carriers would be exempted from strike action.

Secretary-Treasurer Jesse Calhoun of the Marine Engineers denied his union is refusing to clear NMU-manned defense vessels, and favoring others with SIU crews.

The strike against nearly 1,000 American flag freighters, tankers and passenger ships, involves a union fight for the right to organize so-called runaway ships — American-owned vessels operating under foreign flags.

Some 20 port cities are the target of the strikers, from Boston to New Orleans to Portland, Ore.

Other unions involved in the strike are the Masters, Mates and Pilots Union, a pursers union and two small unions of radio operators.

Reds Must Follow Suit

U.S. Offers To Pull Advisors Out Of Laos

GENEVA, (AP) — The United States offered Tuesday to pull its 300 military advisers out of Laos if the 14-nation Geneva conference sets up controls to guarantee the Communists follow suit.

The Chinese Communists immediately rejected this idea and other American proposals aimed at safeguarding Laotian neutrality. A spokesman for the Peiping government called them an attempt to set up a superstate in the Southeast Asian kingdom.

He said the position taken by U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman could lead to a breakup of the conference and if the United States sticks to its latest line "it will certainly lead to a further outbreak of the Laotian war."

The Chinese reaction came at a briefing session after Harriman addressed the 20th session of the five-week-old conference.

Series Of Proposals
The chief U.S. delegate put forth a series of proposals for clearing war-torn Laos of military forces and armaments. He wants to give the International Control Commission teams power to block any arms buildup. He submitted the proposals as supplements to a Western-backed plan introduced by the French June 6.

The flareup here was accompanied by these related developments:

1. Premier Prince Boun Oum submitted to a working committee in Zurich a proposed agenda including formation of a unified delegation to the Geneva conference, new National Assembly elections and problems of the cease-fire. Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma was reported slightly ill and did not get together personally with Boun Oum and pro-Communist Prince Souphanouvong.

2. Military sources in Vientiane said seven companies of pro-Communist troops, backed by mortars, have driven progovernment Meo tribal militiamen from Mt. Pou San in a four-day offensive launched last Friday. The mile-high peak is about 20 miles north of the rebel-held Plaine des Jarres. The Meos were reported to have dispersed into the jungles. There were no details on casualties.

A year of that kind, Dillon said, would give the federal government enough revenues "to meet all of our national needs, with something left over."

He detailed the budget situation this way: The deficit for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, will be $3 billion. The deficit for the 1962 fiscal year, which begins July 1, will be $3.7 billion. This is based on predicted government revenues of $81.4 billion.

But Dillon said the expected boom year of 1962 would bring in $90 billion in revenues for the federal budget of the 1963 fiscal year.

"Inevitable"
He said the expected deficit for the 1962 fiscal year "is both inevitable and appropriate." And he said the alternative—cutting government spending to the level of government revenues—would be "totally unacceptable."

Dillon's figures mean the government would engage in deficit spending at least part of the time that the nation is in an economic boom. He explained that this would occur because the tax revenues from the boom can not be collected until a year later.

But he foresaw no inflationary pressures from the situation. Instead, he said, the deficit "will be helpful in putting our unused plant capacity and labor force to work."

In general, Dillon said the Treasury Department had four aims: rapid economic growth, full employment, price stability and tax improvement.

On the last goal, Dillon said his department wants to develop "a tax system which assesses the tax burden fairly and reasonably in accordance with ability to pay."

The United States, whose commercial air experts are now involved in negotiations with other nations, asked for a delay to July 18. Moscow is expected to reply soon.

While a U.S.-Soviet air connection has been under consideration for several years, the two sides never have reached the negotiating table. Talks were once scheduled to begin last July. The United States canceled them at the last minute, after the Soviets shot down a U.S. RB47 reconnaissance bomber.

GEORGE S. CARMAN, 60, of 32 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, became the third member of his family to die as a result of a head-on auto collision last Saturday near Easton.

Carman died yesterday in Easton Hospital where he was hospitalized after the accident. The other victims were his son, Marcellus J. Carman, 36, driver of one of the cars, and his wife, Mrs. Mary J. Carman, all of the same address.

Marcellus Carman was killed instantly. His mother died at Easton Hospital a little more than three hours after the accident. Northampton County Coroner George Kametz reported that Marcellus died of a crushed chest. His mother, who went into a state of shock and never recovered, died of internal hemorrhages of the chest, a fractured right leg and lacerations of the arms and face, he said.

All the Carmans were in one vehicle. (Another member of the Carman family, John Edward Carman, 30, was instantly killed in an auto-truck collision on Saturday, Dec. 12, 1959).

(Carman was fatally injured when the wheels of a tractor-trailer went over the top of his station wagon in a crash on rain-swept Route 209 northeast of East Stroudsburg at about 11:30 a.m.)

(Carman resided in East Stroudsburg RD 2. State police said the accident occurred opposite the Middle Smithfield Presbyterian Church.)

Retired Fireman
George S. Carman was a retired stationary fireman at the Holland Thread Co., Main St., Stroudsburg.

Carman, of the Baptist faith, was a member of the Stroudsburg Eagles No. 1106 and served in the Navy during World War I.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. from the Dunkelberger and Westbrook funeral home. Rev. William L. Petovic will officiate. Interment will be in the Stroudsburg Cemetery.

Friends and relatives may call on Friday from 7 to 9 p. m. at the funeral home.

Surviving is a daughter, Mrs. Frank Sargent, Jr., Stroudsburg, and a son, George P. Carman, of Wharton, N. J.

The elder Carman was one of three survivors of the two-car head-on crash until his death.

The other two, both in the second car, are John J. Knisley, 18, of 183 S. Whitfield St., Nazareth, driver of the other car, and his passenger, Glenn George Wallace, 20, of Wilmerding, Allegheny County.

Both youths suffered fractured jaws and cuts of the head and face. The Wallace youth also has a severed tongue.

The accident happened on the Nazareth-Tatamy Road, near the crest of a rise in front of the alfalfa dehydrating plant of Green Acres Farms. The crash occurred in bright daylight between 1 and 2 p. m. on the Nazareth-Tatamy Road in Upper Palmer Township about three miles north of Easton.

Demolished
Both vehicles were demolished, said Palmer Township Police Chief Charles Wenner who investigated the crash. Carman was driving a 1959 sedan; the other car was a 1957 sedan.

Although details of the accident are vague, Wenner said the Knisley vehicle was traveling east and Carman was heading west on the Tatamy-Nazareth Road when the impact took place.

Chief Wenner could not question the victims immediately after the crash because they were under heavy sedation.

Police did say, however, that visibility in the area is restricted due to the land contour. The roadway slopes gradually upward on the eastern side of the rise but drops away sharply toward the Lehigh and New England Railroad tracks on the western side.

The westbound Carman car came to rest on a shoulder along the north side of the highway. Knisley's car stopped across the center line after spinning around and facing west.

Eichmann Says He 'Took Orders'

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann swore calmly Tuesday "in the name of the Almighty God" he had been only a bureaucrat taking orders and not the Nazis' key figure in the World War II extermination of six million Jews.

Testifying for the first time in his own defense before an Israeli court, the former chief of the Gestapo's Jewish Affairs Section said he was powerless to halt the "senseless measures" the Nazis launched against the Jews.

"I could not influence," he declared in measured German. "My status was too modest."

Saboteur Of Vital Towers Is Eager To Stand Trial

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — The federal government filed new sabotage charges Tuesday against Bernard Jerome Brous. A prosecutor said he understands Brous is eager to stand trial and "tell his story to the whole world."

Brous, 51, is described as mad at the world, generally, and at the telephone company, specifically.

He is accused of sabotage in the May 28 explosions which temporarily knocked out transcontinental microwave communications.

Brous, a New Yorker who friends say parlayed a $40,000 inheritance into a real estate fortune, was arrested at Ensenada, Mexico, last Saturday night in his schooner.

So was Dale Christian Jensen, 23, a miner and heavy equipment operator from Reno, Nev., who said Brous hired him to blow up the microwave relay tower at Wendover, Nev., the underground cable relay system at Knolls, Utah, and the microwave relay tower at Cedar Mountain in western Utah.

Brous was reported to be miffed when a small firm of his couldn't compete with a large phone company for minor repair work in Texas.

He organized to fight what he felt was a big business monopoly in telephones and sent out recruiting letters for his "American Republican Army." Tracing those letters led to his arrest.

Brous and Jensen were taken from Mexico to San Diego, Calif., on a charge of conspiring to commit sabotage in Nevada. The charges filed Tuesday specified sabotage and conspiracy in connection with the Utah blasts.

An assistant U.S. attorney in Utah, C. Nelson Day, said "Jensen is quite volatile about it all. Brous is not quite that talkative. But I understand he wants to stand trial and tell his story to the whole world. He is a very unusual man."

House-Senate Discuss Bill On Education

HARRISBURG (AP) — A joint House-Senate special committee met Tuesday night to discuss the toughest problem currently facing the General Assembly—means of improving Pennsylvania education.

In the House, the administration introduced two bills that would finance some of the recommendations of Gov. Lawrence's education study committee.

One proposal would levy a state-wide 6 mill tax on out-of-state stocks, bonds and other forms of intangible personal property. It would produce an estimated $27.5 million a year.

An alternative proposal would tax returns from investments—stocks, dividends and interest—at a 2 per cent rate. It would produce an estimated $30.6 million a year.

Prior to the joint committee meeting members from both houses and both parties seemed in agreement that these two questions would hold the center of discussion—state aid to school districts and school district reorganization.

"What we will do is classify bills as to priority," said Sen. Paul L. Wagner, R-Schuylkill, a committee member and main GOP spokesman on education legislation.

Sen. Jo Hays, D-Centre, education committee chairman, agreed that priority assignment was the main item of business before the joint group.

Names Pennsy Man
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy Tuesday nominated Bernard J. Brown to be the United States attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania.

The 41-year-old Brown lives in Carbondale, in eastern Pennsylvania's hard coal belt.

Dillion Foresees Economic Boom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon predicted Tuesday that by next year "we may well be in the midst of an economic boom." He said a tax cut might result.

Dillon envisioned a federal budget surplus large enough to pave the way for lower taxes.

He told the National Press Club this bright future must be considered when discussing the federal deficits foreseen for the 1961 and 1962 fiscal years.

House Action Seen Soon On Compact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., said Tuesday that House action on a bill to create an interstate agency for development of the Delaware River Basin's water resources is expected soon.

Just how soon neither Walter nor any of his colleagues was prepared to say.

Action was delayed Monday because some interested congressmen couldn't be on hand.

That was the second postponement. A few weeks ago action was put off because Walter, the bill's sponsor, became ill. He has been back on the job for several days.

Easy Sailing

Walter says he believes the bill will sail through easily, by at least a two-thirds majority.

When the proposal was first advanced earlier this year the interior department raised some objections. Pennsylvania sources have said this opposition is lessening.

Three of the four states bordering on the river — New Jersey, Delaware and New York — have approved the proposal, in the form of a compact. The Pennsylvania Senate has approved it but the House has not yet voted on it. The federal government would come in as a fifth partner.

SS Deadline For Disabled Workers Set

JUNE 30 is an important deadline for many disabled workers stated Harry R. Peterman, manager of the Eastern Social Security District Office.

Failure to make application for disability benefits on or before that date could result in ineligibility for such benefits, and possible loss of rights to future retirement or survivors benefits.

Peterman explained that a work requirement must be met in order for a worker to qualify for disability benefits. This requirement specifies that the worker must have been employed on a job covered by social security for at least five years out of the 10 years before he became disabled.

However, after June 30, this requirement must be met as of a date no earlier than 18 months before the claim for benefits is made. This means that a person who became disabled before 1955 would lose his rights to disability benefits after the June 30 deadline.

Peterman urged all disabled workers with long-standing disabilities to contact the social security office no later than June 30. The Eastern office is located at 104 Northampton St.

she is survived by one sister, Mrs. Myron Howes of Kennysbunk Port, Me.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 1 p.m. from the William H. Clark Funeral Home, Rev. John O'Neill will officiate. Interment will be in the Laurelwood Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 7 p.m. on Thursday.

Effective next Wednesday, he also announced, there will be an important change in the method of dialing long distance calls direct from Stroudsburg and Delaware Water Gap telephones.

"It will be necessary on calls to points outside the local calling area to dial the code figure '1' before dialing the desired number," he explained. "This access code figure will route the call through the Direct Distance Dialing switching equipment."

Complete instructions for making local and out-of-town calls are summarized in the information pages of the directory, he added.

Approximately 19,100 copies of the new book will be mailed to telephone customers in this vicinity.

The new telephone book contains approximately 13,000 alphabetical listings of telephone customers in this general area, an increase of 235 over last year.

Some 4,000 classified listings of business and professional customers in the area are shown in the Yellow Pages section of the book.

The directory lists telephone customers in Bushkill, Cresco, Delaware Water Gap, Mount Pocono, Newfoundland, Pocono Lake and Stroudsburg.

ANOTHER BIG REASON BEHIND THE BIG BOOM IN FORD SALES:

Galaxie styling is inspiring more admiration (and imitation) than any other car on the road!

This is the look that started with Thunderbird—sleek the Galaxie—and quickly became the styling success of the Sixties.

Many cars have tried to copy it. No car has succeeded. Incomparably beautiful, the 1961 Galaxie maintains its distinction—as originals always do.

Styling is only part of Galaxie's distinction: this is the car that's beautifully built to take care of itself. The '61 Ford goes 30,000 miles between chassis lubrications . . . 4,000 miles between oil changes. Brakes adjust automatically. The muffler is built to last three times as long as ordinary ones. The body is specially treated to resist rust and corrosion. The finish never needs waxing.

Wouldn't it make sense to STOP spending money on an old car that can never do for you what a new Ford can do?

SWAP right now while your Ford Dealer's sales are booming—and the swapping is easier than it's ever been before.

By PAT WILLIAMS
MOUNTAINHOME — "The Pleasure of His Company" at Pocono Playhouse was a real pleasure Monday night. The stars carried the play with excellent opening night timing and aplomb.
Faye Emerson turned her native wit and personality to the part of a re-married woman meeting her first husband at the marriage of their daughter with happy results. The comedy came easily and no lines or subplots were lost. Her handling of the part enhanced the relationships of the supporting players to an immeasurable degree.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor own the site of the new facility. Taylor, Inc., owner of the L. F. Taylor, Inc. building block firm, said he plans to have his company construct the building.
The building will remain under private ownership while it is rented to the federal government. The owner will pay local real estate taxes.
The lease will run for five years, with four renewal options each for five years.

Church Aides
Home From Sessions

FOUR AREA residents have returned after attending United Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania sessions held in Grove City. Attending from the area were Rev. Wesley Crowthers, Shawnee; Rev. John Bollier, Stroudsburg; Mrs. G. Wesley Wakefield, East Stroudsburg RD 3; and Rev. Gorman Roof, Stroudsburg RD 2.
Matters involving reassignment of churches to different Presbyteries, Synod finances, the much-publicized Peace Corps, women's activities, the church's ministry to depressed areas, fair housing practices and church-state relations were dealt with by the 220 delegates representing 15 Presbyteries with a membership of 542,000.
The 58 churches constituting Conemaugh Presbytery were shifted to new Presbyteries. The 40 U. P. churches of Indiana County went to Kiskiminetus Presbytery and the 18 churches of Somerset and Cambria Counties were added to Redstone Presbytery. This action will become effective after approval by the church's General Assembly in 1962.
The four United Presbyterian churches of Reading, Pa., were permanently assigned to Lehigh Presbytery.
In financial matters, a Synod Causes budget of $40,000 was adopted, to be allocated to six U. P. colleges of the state and to church-related student work at four other Pennsylvania Universities. Also included are monies for the Pennsylvania Council of Churches and church extension and re-location work in Pennsylvania.
Rev. Carl S. Fisher of Johnstown and Rev. Raymond Musselman of Pen Argil were elected moderator and vice moderator respectively for the coming year.

Marine
Reenlists
At Depot

MARINE Gunnery Sgt. William J. Blocker reenlisted for an additional four years and was promoted from E-6 to E-7 in the U.S. Marine Corps at the Army's Tobyhanna Signal Depot yesterday. Sgt. Blocker was given his reenlistment oath by the Depot's Executive Officer Maj. George Kahl, Mt. Pocono.
Sgt. Blocker is assigned to the 3rd Engineer Company at Youngstown, Ohio, and is at the Depot on temporary duty as a technical advisor on construction of a rifle range.
He enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1945 and is slated for retirement in four years. During World War II he served in Japan, China, Israel, Iwo Jima and Saipan.
In 1947, Blocker was going from China to Guam in a small Navy landing boat when it was caught in a typhoon. The crew lost all of their gear and were carried to Port Darwin, Russia. When the Russians refused permission to land, Sgt. Blocker was forced to spend three days and nights in below zero weather. Miraculously, the boat did not capsize and another Navy boat came to the rescue with supplies and lashings.
A native of Covington, Ala., Sgt. Blocker is married and has three sons.

Truck
Sideswipes
Two Cars

A TRUCK traveling down Broad Street, Stroudsburg, last night lost its brakes, sideswiped two cars and traveled down Main Street to Second Street before it could stop. Patrolman Russell Decker reported last night.
Theodore Popke, 37, Jim Thorpe operator of the 1956 truck; Lloyd Miller, 37, of 537 Barry St., Stroudsburg, operating a 1958 sedan and Robert Bahr, 20, of 74 Broad St., Stroudsburg, were identified as the drivers of the vehicles involved in the accident, by the Stroudsburg Police.
Miller was stopped on the Broad Street bridge waiting for the traffic light to change. He was heading north and there were several cars in back of him also waiting for the light to change.
As the cars waited the light change the Popke truck came down Broad St. sounding its horn to warn other drivers. Popke attempted to steer his truck past the cars and turn down Main St. but could not make it as the Bahr car entered the intersection traveling south.
The truck sideswiped both the Miller and Bahr cars and continued on down Main Street where it came to a stop at the intersection of Second and Main Streets.
Patrolman Decker said the police would continue the investigation today.
Damage to the two cars was estimated at $100 each by Patrolman Decker. He added that the damage to the truck was minor.
Tomatoes are the number one truck crop in the United States. Value of the tomato harvest in 1960 was $250 million, nearly double that of the on-place crop, lettuce.

Guarding Our Interests

It's difficult to explain why the Russians appear to be exhibiting a somewhat brighter face than we are on the Kennedy-Khrushchev talks.

Cheerful appraisals have, of course, become a fairly common reaction to summit meetings. Moscow, we remember, invented the "spirit of Geneva" in 1955 and the "spirit of Camp David" in 1959.

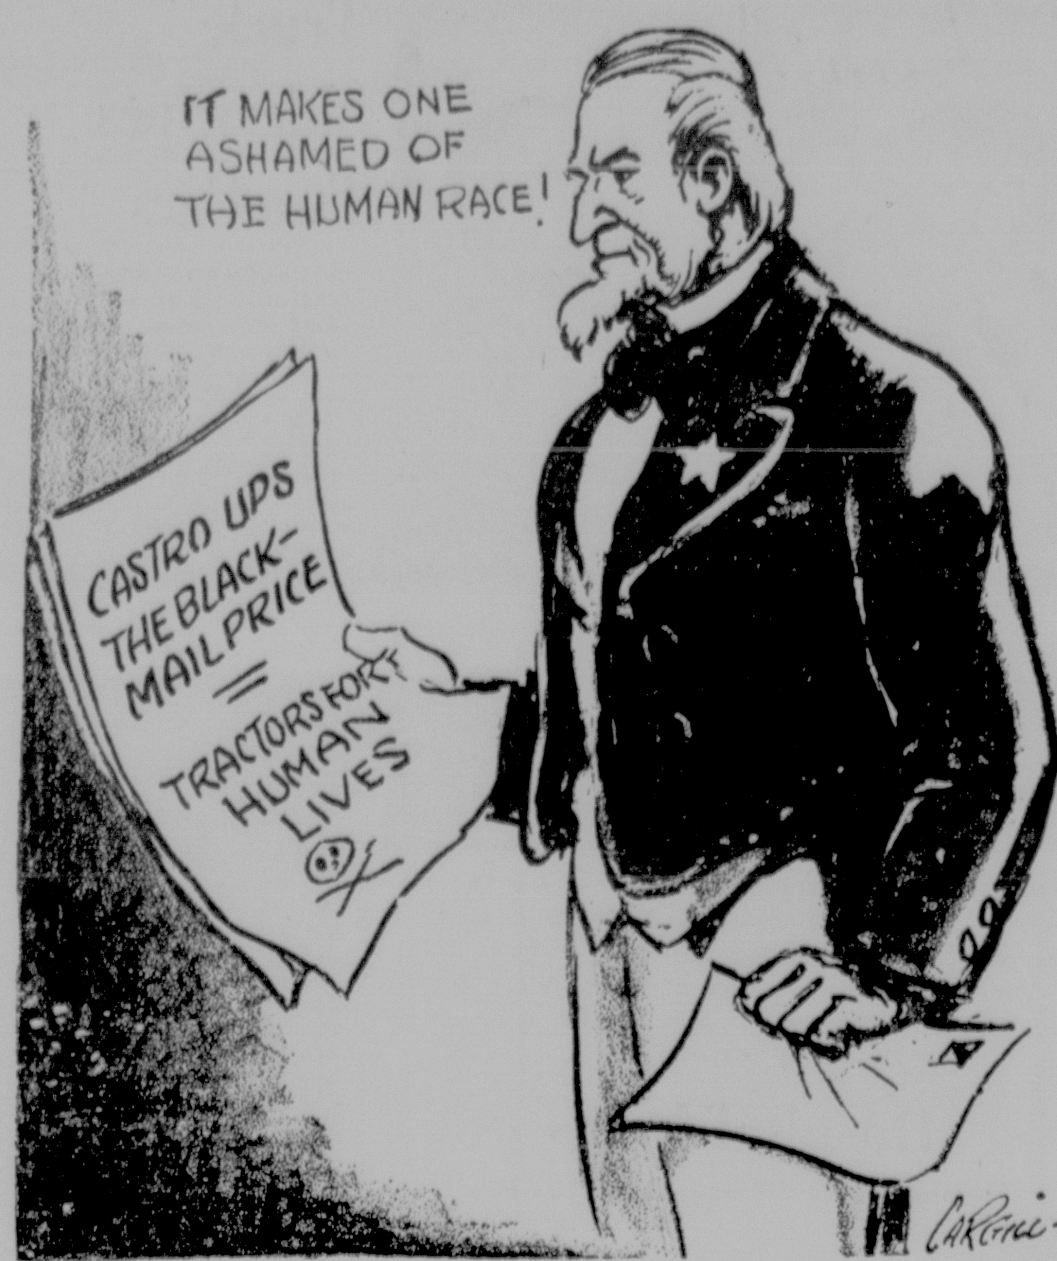

This tactic could be part of the thoroughly understood strategy of alternating aggression and harsh words with pause and hopeful talk of peace. The latter, no less than the former, is conceived as a device for advancing the Soviet cause.

Though the Reds may or may not permit the Laos talks to proceed now to some sort of conclusion, that situation at best is not a bright one for us. Most Western diplomats do not look for tangible, positive benefits for the West from the Vienna meetings. Yet some are arguing that there is a gain in the fact that Khrushchev has at least been warned not to miscalculate U.S. intentions.

If he went to Vienna to "take Kennedy's measure" and learn how far he might push, then he may have learned something of value, it is said.

We cannot be sure whether Khrushchev was the winner or loser in his talks with Kennedy. Until all the facts are known, therefore, we must watch for clues from the Kremlin as to what tact Russia will take in the future in its relations with the United States. And then we must act accordingly and in the strongest manner possible to protect our own security.

Socialism, Strange Export For U.S.

In announcing the appointment of a new member to the board of the Tennessee Valley Authority, President Kennedy urged that organization to "study ways in which the lessons it has learned in the Tennessee Valley may be exported abroad."

While few dispute the accomplishments of TVA as an engineering achievement, it would be less than accurate to send abroad the impression that only by tax-consuming, semi-socialistic projects have we taken "long leaps forward."

Actually the most striking progress in this industry, as in most others, has been made by private-investor companies. Despite taxes and interest rates which favor public power, with more to come in the new Administration, at least 80 per cent of our electric power is produced by private-enterprise companies.

The Idaho Power Company's Hell's Canyon dams add enormously to the power resources of the area and, incidentally, pay $100,000,000 in Federal, state and local taxes.

Experimentation in the use of nuclear fuel for electric-power production is being carried on—with the money of American savers and investors—by a number of power companies. Seventeen nuclear plants are in construction at a cost of about $700,000,000.

Obviously a vast publicly financed and virtually tax-exempt enterprise like TVA can produce electricity, but the message which one might expect an American Government to send abroad is the fact that the most significant American economic progress, including that in the electric-power industry, has been made by private corporations and individuals.

Sometimes one is tempted to believe that many American politicians have forgotten this fact. On the other hand, it is difficult to find much public support for socialized industry. Last November in the so-called public-power states in the western part of the country—despite the effort of Democratic candidates to make public power an important campaign issue—Republicans won in most of these states. It is not insisted that efforts to plug public power account for the defeat of Democratic candidates in these states—only that the alleged issue did not generate enough steam to elect them.

It is curious that politicians should place so much emphasis on public power and public projects generally when in other countries the passion for socialist adventures is fading.

Great Britain's exercise in denationalizing its formerly nationalized industries has given that country a new birth of economic freedom which has left the Labor Party with no issue worth fighting for except getting the Americans and their Polaris missile off the island!

New Zealand has retired its Socialist regime of many years' standing, and West Germany, whose prosperity is driving the Communists crazy, is well launched on a series of "privatizations" of its government-owned industries, including Volkswagens.

Coming soon will be a public offering of stock in Prussian Electric, the nearest thing in Germany to our TVA. A few years back former Sen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania proposed a similar disposal of TVA, arguing, among other things, that this would give the Government and local authorities a chance to tax TVA revenues and properties.

The German Government appears to lack that reason for denationalizing Prussian Electric, for that power complex in 1958 paid 37 per cent of its gross revenues in taxes. This compares with an average of 23 per cent paid by American investor power companies and, of course, discredits TVA completely.

If the New Frontier wants to do something handsome for other countries, why not let them in on some of the things our people have been doing for themselves without bureaucratic interference?

Actually delegations from all over the world visit our private power plants, as well as TVA, to get ideas on engineering, management and finance. It looks as if some other countries have done their homework on this subject and may wonder why the "capitalistic" United States should attempt to educate them on the virtues of socialism.

Reports From Congress

Small-Town Study

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington — The typical "Our Town" is in trouble.

While the Nation's population grows, big cities are growing faster as people move from small towns and rural areas to metropolitan centers. So the quiet small town grows quieter and, except in rare cases, prosperity and dynamic progress pass it by.

These problems will get official attention by a new federal commission if the House okays a bill recently passed by the Senate.

The bill is co-sponsored by South Dakota Sens. Karl E. Mundt (R) and Francis Case (R). It would establish a 20-member bipartisan commission to make a nation-wide down-to-earth study of the problems of small communities and rural counties to help them stabilize their growth and economy. At the present time there is no agency in government or elsewhere studying problems or assembling data about the thinly populated areas in our country, according to Mundt.

Decline of the Small Town — Rep. Lindley Beekworth (D., Texas) and Rep. E. Y. Berry (R., S.D.) are sponsoring identical House bills to the Senate-passed Mundt-Case measure. Rep. Thomas F. Johnson (D., Md.) is sponsoring a somewhat similar House measure.

The 1960 census disclosed that small communities outside the orbit of heavily populated urban areas and rural counties continued to decline in population between 1950 and 1960. "Yearly, some of our smaller communities wither," Mundt said.

They would attempt to arrest this decline in somewhat different ways. The Johnson bill provides for a continuing commission to study the problems of communities of less than 25,000 population. The Mundt-Case measure is aimed at aiding towns of less than 10,000 population and rural counties of less than 50,000 population.

The Mundt-Case bill would have a special commission make a report on small town and rural problems by Feb. 1, 1963, then go out of existence. But Mundt told Congressional Quarterly that a bureau might be set up within the proposed Department of Urban Affairs or within some other federal agency to give long-range attention to small-town problems after the commission had reported its findings in 1963.

The Johnson bill stresses the importance of attracting new businesses to small-town areas, including the allocation of more defense contracts to smaller communities.

The Mundt-Case bill stresses across-the-board studies of the present and future needs of small towns and rural areas, including public services, water resources, schools, recreation, financing, law enforcement, transportation, business and industrial development.

Support and Opposition — A number of church groups, including the Lutheran, Baptist and Methodist Churches, which have heavy membership in small towns and rural areas in the Midwest and the South, and the National Catholic Rural Life Conference have indicated their support of the Mundt-Case proposal. Johnson claims the support of the American Municipal Association, the National Association of County Officials and the Maryland House of Delegates for his proposal.

But the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is cool to all of these small town commission proposals. The Chamber feels that it is up to local communities to solve their own problems. It says it is putting out brochures to help them do so.

And Rep. Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) has pointed out that the big industrial areas "may not be agreeable" to the provision in Johnson's bill to encourage the allocation of more defense contracts to small towns.

June 28, Canada's five-cent commemorative honoring the Colombo Plan. Several countries will be issuing stamps in honor of the tenth anniversary of the Colombo Plan.

The Colombo Plan was initiated by Commonwealth Countries to assist in the economic development of certain underdeveloped countries by providing trained manpower and resources. Canada's contribution has been in hydro-electric power, transportation, and communications facilities.

Under the technical cooperation scheme, up to 1960, Canada had assigned 156 experts in a wide variety of skills and specialized knowledge to member countries. During the same period 1300 trainees from these countries spent periods in Canada studying at universities and receiving training in various government departments.

No nation can hope to prosper independently in the world of today, and Canada, by recognizing its obligations to the broad community of mankind, through the Colombo Plan, has helped to raise living standards throughout the world, and in turn ensure increasing prosperity for itself as well.

Members of the Monroe Stamp Club will hold informal trading meetings at Ray Patton's house, Franklin Hill, each Wednesday night during the summer.

Postman Wrings Twice

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Democratic leaders are becoming a somewhat irritable lot these days — and perhaps understandably so in light of developments insofar as the Administration's legislative program is concerned.

Gone to the winds is the legislative timetable Administration leaders had originally set up for movement of their programs through the General Assembly. Faced with one roadblock after another Democratic stalwarts have resigned themselves to battling their way as best they can, working in effect strictly on a week-to-week schedule.

Several factors have combined to bring about this condition, but there are two primary underlying points: (1) Republican opposition in both House and Senate has proved more effective and telling than originally envisaged; (2) Differences are becoming sharper between Democratic legislative leaders and their own rank and file forces.

Gone from the faces of many legislative leaders are the pleasant and optimistic smiles of yesterday. Diminishing fast is the display of light wit and humor on the part of leaders that once punctuated legislative sessions. Even the light banter and sometimes Churchillian witticisms of that veteran Democratic leader of the House, bespectacled Speaker Hiram G. Andrews, appears to be on the wane as more frequently than ever he bangs his gavel testily for order on the floor.

As is generally accepted as the prerogative of the Speaker of the House, the aging but still mentally agile Mr. Andrews is beginning to rule with a firmer hand the deliberations and actions of the lower chamber.

In fairness it must be said, he is doing so without show of partisanship. He is as prone to rap the knuckles of the fellow Democratic legislator as well as Republicans on the other side of the aisle.

The importance of all this lies not in the direct action itself but more in an indication of the trend legislative matters are taking. More and more veteran legislators are becoming convinced that one of the most serious and threatening impediments in recent years is brewing in the legislative cauldron. There is no indication at the moment as to just where it may lead before this session joins the pages of history.

Unquestionably at the root of much of the trouble insofar as Administration forces are concerned, stems from (a) inability to clean up the administration's complete fiscal program, (b) the redistricting mess, and (c) what to do about education in Pennsylvania.

There is almost as new a division of feeling among Democratic lawmakers on some of these points as between Democrats and Republicans. It has brought about an irritable daily growing more difficult to overcome.

No clearcut solution appears to be in the offing at this point and unless more agreement can be reached, Democrats in Pennsylvania face a tough time not only this year but also in the upcoming election year.

It smacks sharply of the division of forces that beset Republican Governor Fine in the 1951 and 1953 sessions of the Legislature, although it is doubtful if it will erupt into anything quite as serious or far-reaching.

Although Democratic leaders refuse to openly admit it, the prospect is ever-present now.

Irritable Lot

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Democratic leaders are becoming a somewhat irritable lot these days — and perhaps understandably so in light of developments insofar as the Administration's legislative program is concerned.

Gone to the winds is the legislative timetable Administration leaders had originally set up for movement of their programs through the General Assembly. Faced with one roadblock after another Democratic stalwarts have resigned themselves to battling their way as best they can, working in effect strictly on a week-to-week schedule.

Several factors have combined to bring about this condition, but there are two primary underlying points: (1) Republican opposition in both House and Senate has proved more effective and telling than originally envisaged; (2) Differences are becoming sharper between Democratic legislative leaders and their own rank and file forces.

Gone from the faces of many legislative leaders are the pleasant and optimistic smiles of yesterday. Diminishing fast is the display of light wit and humor on the part of leaders that once punctuated legislative sessions. Even the light banter and sometimes Churchillian witticisms of that veteran Democratic leader of the House, bespectacled Speaker Hiram G. Andrews, appears to be on the wane as more frequently than ever he bangs his gavel testily for order on the floor.

As is generally accepted as the prerogative of the Speaker of the House, the aging but still mentally agile Mr. Andrews is beginning to rule with a firmer hand the deliberations and actions of the lower chamber.

In fairness it must be said, he is doing so without show of partisanship. He is as prone to rap the knuckles of the fellow Democratic legislator as well as Republicans on the other side of the aisle.

The importance of all this lies not in the direct action itself but more in an indication of the trend legislative matters are taking. More and more veteran legislators are becoming convinced that one of the most serious and threatening impediments in recent years is brewing in the legislative cauldron. There is no indication at the moment as to just where it may lead before this session joins the pages of history.

Dolores Cullen, wife of the proprietor of Tommy Cullen's Top O' The Fox, is one of the most avid New York Yankee fans in Monroe County.

In fact, we doubt you'd get much of an argument from anyone who knows her if you said she was one of the most avid Yankee fans in the country.

The fact that many of her friends are equally violent anti-Yankees makes for some interesting results.

You may remember last October when the Pittsburgh Pirates won the World's Championship by defeating the Yankees on a homer by Bill Mazeroski.

Shortly thereafter, the local office of Western Union started telephoning the Cullen home as one sympathy message after another — all addressed to Dolores — began to come in from all over.

But even that wasn't the end. The late Tom Waring, one of Dolores' best friends, called her at the house one day and invited her to Shavene to meet a friend. You've probably guessed it — it was Mazeroski.

Mrs. C. was undaunted, however. When she found who the visitor was she showed up wearing a huge straw hat with a Yankee pennant emblazoned on it, a souvenir from an earlier trip to watch her heroes in action.

Mrs. Cullen's devotion to the Yankees stems from her childhood in the Bronx and to her older brothers who took her to the Stadium frequently.

Harry Ahnert, one of the maestros guiding the destinies of the Fernwood resort on Route 209, near Bushkill, gave us a first hand look-see at his indoor swimming pool.

We had heard that the "aqua darling" was out of this world. Now we can honestly say the pool sent us into orbit. Superb construction, blended with an eye-catching design makes it a picture right out of one of Cecil B. DeMille's sets. All that is missing is Cleopatra taking one of her famous milk baths.

We could go on and describe the attributes of Harry's latest pleasure for his guests. But we would only tend to take away the adjectival applause it deserves.

So we'll let well enough alone and end with, "Wow ! ! !"

George Sokolsky Says . . .

How To Go Broke

Prof. Robert Triffin of Yale writes with wisdom on how to go broke. Of course, it is not essential to go broke. This is most often avoidable, but some set out to do it without much thought of the aftermath.

There are even those who enjoy going broke, spending their way through life until nothing is left for them but to make a touch.

So the learned professor does an essay on the subject with apt applications to what has happened and is happening to the American dollar because of the improvident spending of our money. Professor Triffin says: "There are two ways to go broke: a slow one and a fast one. The slow way is to go on, year after year, spending more money than you earn. But if you are rich to begin with, you won't go broke very fast that way. You will pay for your overspending by depleting your bank balance and other assets and by getting loans from people who trust your capacity to repay them later.

"A much faster way to go broke is to finance too much of your overspending by short-term borrowing. Even if you stop overspending, you may then still run into serious trouble if your IOU's are suddenly presented to you for repayment at a time when your bank balance has fallen too low to cover them.

"If you still have other, long-term assets in sufficient amount, you will remain perfectly solvent, but you will be confronted, nevertheless, with what is called a liquidity crisis."

The term, "liquidity crisis," might be translated into the simple word, tight. Many of us have been tight, or put it another way, short of cash. When a nation gets to be short of cash, it can, of course, print more paper money. It can go on printing money until its money is worthless.

Prof. Triffin makes the point: "We have, over the past decade, spent, lent, and given away about $20 billion more than we earned and covered the difference by cash payments in gold ($6 billion) and also by short-term IOU's ($14 billion), which foreign central banks, private banks, and individuals were, until recently, quite glad to invest in, since the dollar was regarded as safer than any other currency, and even, for the time being, as safe as gold itself."

It was, of course, too much to give away; so the dollar depreciated in value. We were not conscious of this in the United States because we did not go hungry here.

The country was rich. The people were well off. We have a high standard of living. Nevertheless, economics walked its harsh way without regard to human enthusiasms and the result was that our gold supply began to disappear.

As a short-cut solution some bankers proposed that we withdraw the small gold protection that the American dollar has — a ridiculous proposal which would not have been made by those great men of Wall Street who rejected Populism and free silver and other attempts to cheapen the American dollar.

Those who believe in cheap money suffer from the aberration that the more money you have the richer you are. This is only true if the money has value. If, for instance, a currency stands at, let us say, 288 to the dollar, it means that a fellow who has $100's worth of it has 28,800 of that currency. Looking at it, 28,800 is more than 100 but is it worth more?

I can remember when $25 a week was very good pay for a secretary who could take stenography, spell, add a column of figures, and say, "Good Morning," politely. A girl who can do all that today might command $100 or more a week, but is she getting more?

The likelihood, adding taxes, social security, and the high cost of living is that she is getting less. The same is true of all wage earners; their nominal wages go up but it is in money that is worth less.

Money is nothing to fool about and politicians have a way of covering up errors by doing the wrong thing grandiloquently. But it is our money and we need to give it watchful attention. Money is the business of Congress and Congress has not been too keen on resuming its responsibility to rest on the American dollar.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The wild strawberries are ripe. To anyone who knows me that was ample excuse for not getting the fingermarks off wall around the light switches as I fully intended.

I discovered the strawberries when I went out for the very housewifely chore of burning papers and they kept leading me further and further afield. There is something very sweet about wild strawberries war m from the sun and fresh from the stalk, you can't duplicate anywhere else in the world probably.

As I hunted them out I couldn't help wondering whether they flaunted their red leaves along with the berries as sort of a decoy —like a partridge pretending a broken wing to lure enemies away from her young — or whether they hunt them out like neon signs, calling the birds to come and eat.

I hardly got enough strawberries to make a meal and probably got a case of poison ivy besides neglecting my chores, but the interval of peace was worth it.

However, they did find an unexpected use for me at the dinner for the potential Miss Pocono Mountaineers at the Penn-Stroud. I flipped their hoops over the back of their arm chairs, a very necessary chore unless they were prepared to have the hoops pop up in front of their faces, and eat by remote control.

It was a much easier chore than judging. For my money I would probably have about 14 Miss Pocono Mountaineers, one for every hill.

Historic River Valleys Yield Lore On Pilgrimage

Historic river valleys provided the source material for the annual Summer trip of the Monroe County Historical Society on Saturday, June 17. Armed with walking shoes, cameras, and the urge to know more about their environment, 70 members and friends of the society embarked on a pilgrimage through the picturesque Delaware and Hudson River Valleys. The affair was coordinated by a committee headed by Horace G. Walters, and by Robert B. Haigh, president of the society.

Even before the first major historic site was reached, the group discovered exciting details about the familiar road to Milford; that the first Masonic Lodge in the county was built near Blue Ridge Inn; that Indians camped en masse at Great Minisink Island in the river near Dingmans Ferry; that Tom Quick, of Milford, according to the legend, killed 99 Indians.

From the tinkling of the old roller organ to the over-flowing cracker barrel in the general store, the Old Museum Village of Smith's Clove showered the visitor with the sights, sounds, and smells of Americana, in this case a reproduction of a New York village of the 19th century, including self-reliant homesteads, craft shops, and stores, the Museum Village showed the historians America in transition from agricultural to industrial society.

The mid-Hudson Valley which was the eventual destination of the Society's Pilgrimage, reached prominence in the Revolutionary War after the Battle of Yorktown and the official end of the war.

The historians visited the headquarters of General Knox, later Washington's first Secretary of War, and one of the places where George Washington actually did sleep, his headquarters at Newburgh. Both homes, on spacious grounds provided opportunities for a first-hand education in Colonial architecture. The Washington home, overlooking the Hudson, with its unique open fireplaces, was a fitting conclusion to a day spent among the living artifacts of the past.

TRAVELING TONIGHT? Edna Brockman, head of Wyckoff's Travel Bureau, is always happy to sell tickets to any place far or near that catches her client's fancy. Right now she suggests traveling tonight to Tamiment-in-the-Poconos, one of this area's loveliest resorts, where the annual Wyckoff-Hadassah Fashion Show of Wyckoff casual wear and Israeli couture gowns, will be presented at 8:30. Edna also suggests 402 as a perfect, detour-free route. Simply turn left at Marshalls Creek and follow the signs! Tickets may be purchased at the door or from Wyckoff's Gift Wrap Center for 1.50. There will be favors, refreshments, prizes, and dancing to music of the Tamiment orchestra. Those not attending dinner prior to the show are invited to go in plenty of time to tour the Tamiment grounds. Seating for the show will begin not earlier than 7:30. Co-chairmen Erika Liebert and Edna Jacobsen are pictured above with Mrs. Brockman.

The House Of The Week

Two-Story Combines Past And Present

By JULES LOH
MODERN day architects have come up with ranch houses, raised ranch houses and split levels of nearly every conceivable variety. But let's face it, granddaddy's traditional two-story is tough to beat when you apply the tests of economy, livability and convenience.

House of the Week B-71, an attractive plan for a three-bedroom family, offers the benefits of two-story construction but also features modern housing looks and ideas.

As architect Herbert C. Struppman put it, "I took the advantages of traditional design, combined them with present needs, and the house just sort of designed itself."

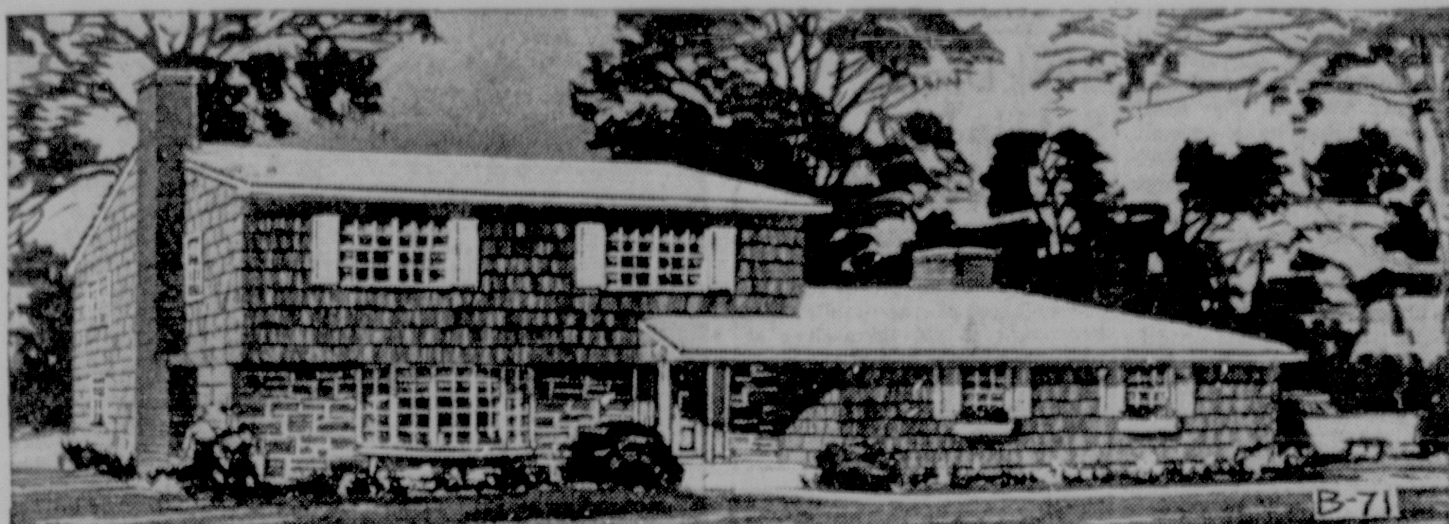

B-71 has 1,130 square feet of living area on the first floor, not counting the 470 square foot double garage, and 830 square feet in three bedrooms and two baths on the second story. It also has a full basement.

The first floor design provides excellent "circulation" — something granddaddy's two-story concept often lacked.

The front entrance vestibule and hall leading to the living room and kitchen assures privacy for formal entertaining as well as convenience for daily living. Any part of the house can be reached without disturbing activities in any other part.

The kitchen is a pleasure for any housewife — a 16 feet by 11 feet three inches work center with a sunny dinette corner.

Down a step is the family room which, like the entire house, is itself a contemporary feature with traditional touches. Focal point of this 11 feet three inches by 24 feet three inches casual area is a handsome colonial fireplace. But its most practical feature is a lavatory tucked away where it is convenient not only to persons indoors but also to children playing outside who may enter through the garage or rear entrance.

TRADITIONAL CONCEPT; MODERN IDEAS:
Handsome two-story has side-entry attached garage, with family room in rear, which adds modern distinction to a traditional idea. Shingles and stone veneer

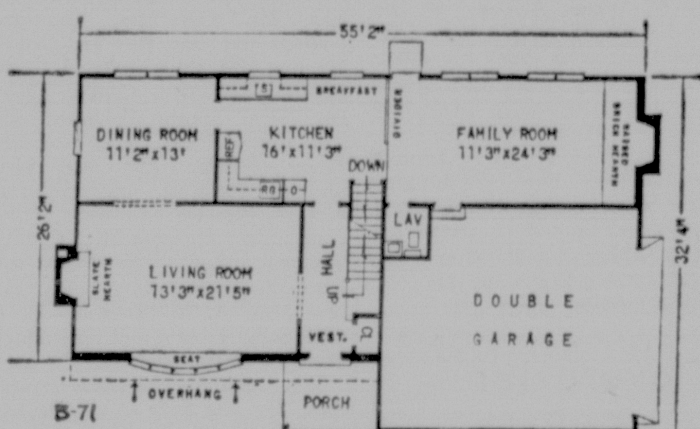

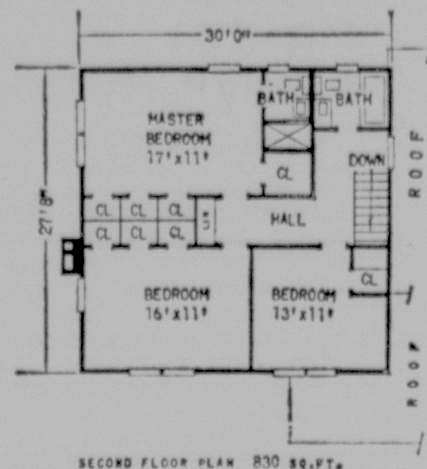

If there was one thing lacking in granddaddy's two-story it was adequate storage space and closets. Not so with this house. There are 10 closets in all, including a family-sized linen closet upstairs and a well-placed coat closet in the front vestibule.

Note the roomy walk-in closet in the master bedroom in addition to the spacious triple closets which also serve as a sound buffer between the two adjoining bedrooms. Other storage opportunities are in the basement and the nearly full-depth alcove in the garage.

Economy of two-story design makes possible some luxury features (such as three baths and two fireplaces) not usually found in a three-bedroom home. And B-71's dimensions—32 feet four inches by 55 feet two inches—adapt it to a modest sized lot.

Upstairs there is a minimum of hall space, but more than enough to make good passage possible and to assure the privacy of each of the three large bedrooms.

combine in colonial fashion. House has three bedrooms, three baths, two fireplaces and other features made possible by two-story economy.

FLOOR PLANS: Front vestibule and hall provide excellent circulation in this well-planned two-story.

Note also the abundance of closets—10 in all, plus garage storage alcove and full basement.

Painted Pots
Match flower pots to a newly painted room. It's an easy matter to put each flower pot over a milk bottle and paint it with left-over paint.

On Way Up
Attach a substantial handle to one side of your stepladder. Then you can carry it around easily while you're doing your house-cleaning.

WITH THE GRAIN
When you sand furniture in preparation for varnishing or enameling it, always sand with the grain. Sanding across the grain will cause scratches which are difficult to remove and which will show through a varnish finish and keep an enamel coating from being perfectly smooth. For this reason, circular power sanders should be avoided because they cut across the grain.

Jellied Fingers
Rub petroleum jelly on your hands before beginning to paint. Paint spills will wash right off.

Surfboard Easy To Build

By DONALD R. BRANN

A LETTER from a reader said, "My son and I became friends building the surfboard from your pattern." The writer went on to say he had had considerable difficulty "reading" his son. Had gone on fishing trips, taken him to baseball games and other sporting events but had never seemed to find any real meeting ground until the boy decided to build the surfboard and dad helped.

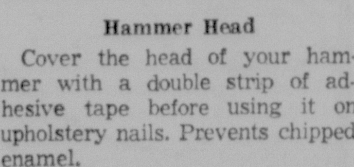

Many of us live with people a whole lifetime and seldom really get to know them until each simultaneously opens his mind to the other. Building something of mutual interest, working with your hands while your entire attention is focused on a mutual effort offers great opportunities for a meeting of the minds.

While originally designed as a surfboard that could be used in riding the heaviest waves, so many letters described other ways these boards had added to the fun of living, we decided to give it a more descriptive name. Many letters told of using these boards on inland lakes as swimming floats.

As a non-sinkable swimming float it provides considerable protection for both children and adults. Youngsters can stand on it, or turn it upside down with complete safety. Light, yet sturdy construction permits it being carried by one person.

The pattern method of building takes the mystery out of building. All materials required are readily available at local lumber yards at a third the cost one would pay for a similar board bought ready-made.

Send 50 cents in coin or money order for Pattern No. 247, Surfboard to The Daily Record, P.O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N. Y. Send additional 35 cents for new catalog illustrating over 300 other build-it-yourself projects.

Hammer Head

Cover the head of your hammer with a double strip of adhesive tape before using it on upholstery nails. Prevents chipped enamel.

CHECK PANEL EDGE

The only way to know you're getting exterior type fir plywood — made with marine glue for exposed use — is to demand panels with the letters EXT-DFFA burned in the edges.

Tough Ticking

Striped ticking is a good fabric for curtains and bedspreads in a child's room. It will withstand the sun and rough tumbling and can be washed again and again.

Crash Pads

If you have a toddler in the house, tape foam rubber crash pads on sharp corners of low furniture within the baby's path. You can buy latex foam sheeting by the yard and cut it to fit.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG

QUESTION: I am planning on covering a closet wall with the perforated boards I have seen in lumber yards. Can you tell me how to attach them so that I get maximum use of the perforations, which will be used for hanging clothes on metal hooks?

Answer: You will have to nail furring strips to the existing wall. Use strips three-quarters of an inch by three-quarters and place them at 16-inch intervals, nailing them through the wall and into the studs. When the strips are in place, spread glue on them and position the panel so that the strips fall between the rows of perforations. Fasten the panel with brads or roundhead wood screws applied through drilled holes or the perforations themselves. Use a fastener every four inches around the edges and every six inches on intermediate supports. Panels one-eighth of an inch in thickness usually are amply strong, but if it is expected that the hanger loads will be extremely heavy, use the quarter-inch size.

You can get the perforated panels with a factory primecoat which is slightly textured and ready for finishing or you can apply a primecoat to ordinary panels and then add the finishing coats. Incidentally, if you are using more than one panel, avoid butting them tightly.

Short Tale — Big Catch

Dear Abby: My husband has been gobbling his dinner every night so he can go fishing about 6:30. He doesn't get back until 2 or 3 the next morning. He always has a big catch. I've been having fresh wide-mouth for dinner every night, and putting some in our freezer, and passing it around to all the neighbors. Can you imagine how I felt when the butcher at the fish market asked me how I liked the fish my husband bought? I haven't spoken to my husband for two days. When I decide to talk — what should I say?

"FISHERMAN'S WIFE"

Dear Wife: Tell him if the fish had kept their wide mouths shut they wouldn't have been caught. And the same goes for him and his big-mouthed butcher.

Dear Abby: Our daughter, 24, has accepted a diamond ring from a handsome, married man and the father of three children. She claims she isn't breaking up his home as he now spends more time with her than he spends with his wife. She knows his wife, and says she is a dried-up clothes-horse.

Our daughter is willing to continue going with this man in hope that one day he will get his freedom and marry her. We don't want to stand by and watch her throw her life away waiting for him. We want her to return the ring, along with the clothes and gifts he has given her, and break up with him for good. Or else I want her out of my house. My husband says if she lives alone she will become more involved with this man. She has quit her job (at his request) so they can have more time together. Am I wrong to ask her to choose between us—her parents — and this man? Please help us to help our daughter.

HEARTSICK PARENTS

Dear Parents: Your husband is right. If you turn her out of your home, her last lifeline to morality and decency will have been severed. Encourage her to go back to work. And pray that she comes to her senses soon and realizes that this man is a selfish, ruthless two-timer who eventually will give her the same treatment he is now giving his wife.

Dear Abby: I am 18 and my steady boy friend is a little older, and much more experienced than I am. We are very fond of each other. You could say we are "in love." Like other couples, we park after a date. A while back you had a letter in your column signed "Never Did." It was from a mother who wanted more than anything in the world for her daughter to be married in a white wedding gown because she "never did." I cut out that letter and carry it in my wallet. I have reread it a hundred times. It has helped me, Dear Abby, more than you will ever know. Thank you for printing it. Sign me—

"I WILL"

Severuds To Travel Abroad

FRED SEVERUD Sr., and his wife, Signe, of East Stroudsburg, are making plans for extensive travel this summer.

First, they will be going to New York City with 45 other members of the East Stroudsburg congregation, to attend the "United Worshipers Assembly" of Jehovah's Witnesses to be held at Yankee Stadium June 20-25.

According to Severud, "at least 70,000 will be there. We expect to see delegates from every major country in this hemisphere."

When the majority of the local representatives return from New York City, the Severuds will not be among them for they will join others from this part of the state who will be leaving by plane to attend several European assemblies.

Conventions similar to the one at Yankee Stadium will be held in Copenhagen, Hamburg, Paris, London and other cities.

"The trip will be enjoyable, of course, but the real joy derived from going to Europe is the spiritual benefit obtained from our association with many fellow Christians in those countries. We know this will make the trip worth its cost in time and money," Severud remarked.

He concluded by saying: "The highlight of each program will be when N. H. Knorr, president of the Watchtower Society, speaks on the subject 'When All Nations Unite Under God's Kingdom.'"

7 Arrested For Sunday Sales

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Seven persons were arrested at two Bargain City U.S.A. stores for violating the Sunday sales blue laws.

Four were arrested at the East Norristown Store, and three were arrested at the Horsesham Store.

The arrests were the first in the county since the Supreme Court on May 20, upheld the Blue laws. The laws restrict merchandise that can be sold on Sunday.
